Something to Amuse the Child

[From the Piston Times.]
Instead of bringing out news of, where the permanent Seat of Government in Canada will be fixed, our Upper Canadian Ministers begin to blurt about the probabilities of a Union of all the British North American Provinces. The Toronto Colonist says, "We understand that the Ministry are paving the way for a Federal Union, and that the Imperial Cabinet are anxious, before the Seat of Government question is disposed of, to establish Railroad commu-

This seems at least certain, that we shall not have the Seat of Government permanently fixed before the question of a Federal Union is discussed by all the Colonies, and probably by representatives of the Imperial Government with them." The Seat of Government may not be fixed until after the contemplated Union is talked of, that is we may not know the fact officially, but the real truth is, that Quebec is already the chosen place—and this talk about Union is a mere blind to distract the expected opposition to the measure in Upper Canada. It is not likely that we shall soon hear of the decision of the Home Government—The Union will be discussed—and the Canadian Government will proceed quietly to Quebec.

Hon. John A. McDonald; a new

Quebec, according to the pictures of the Hon. John A. McDonald; a new election will be held, and a House of Assembly, if possible, obtained, that will be as venial and subservient as the present one, and then we shall get the news of the permanent Seat of Government—at Quebec. The talk about the Union of the British North American Provinces will then end in smoke, and all things will be as of yore, and so on.

and all things will be again permanent and secure. At least such are the hopes of the Hon. J. A. McDonald, who earnestly desires to carry out in the Government of Canada, the cunning wisdom (1) of his friend and adviser, the Hon. (2) Chief Justice Draper.

UNION—the word sounds well, but what man that knows anything of the Colonial policy of Great Britain will believe that the

Home Government wishes to agree

Home Government wishes to agitate the subject of the Federal Union of the British Provinces. Surely Canadians will not believe such clap-trap. At first view, looking at the Federal Union of the United States, some might fancy that a like Union would be advisable in the British Provinces. But what object is to be gained by this policy, as long as we remain subject to the British Crown. We have no trade of a tence with the Province or the Crown. We have no trade of any importance with the Provinces on the sea-board. We know little about the people, and the only Union that exists between us is the fact, that we are all subject to the British Crown! If the British Provinces were about declaring their independence, it might be desirable to form a Federal Union for self-protection: but the Union, if independent, dent, would fall to pieces in a few years from diverse interests. No Brit-

The country has been remarkably patient for three years; but although quiet, have not been indifferent spectators to the bare-faced corruptions of our legislators.—When the country gets roused, it will not be like the apamodic efforts of some of our cities, who are all the time beating the air; the people are beginning to wake up to the importance of acting, which they will do before long at the polls. The next election will be a most important one for Canada, and the man who is indifferent concerning the issues, is no true friend to his country. Our Government, for the past three years, was an accident, a mere trick, a union of men, elected on opposite interests—who united on the spoils.

We are not opposed to a Federal Union of the Provinces, if it can be shown that such a policy will likely result in of the Provinces, if it can be shown that such a policy will likely result in anything permanent. The trouble in this country is the great men (1) that we raise in such abundance. The field is too small for them, and nothing short of a continent will afford full development to their vast powers of mind. In fact, we might as well let our Governor and Ministers remain in London

 dominates in Canada. After Attorney

(England), for everything is left to subordinates in Canada. After Attorney General McDonald, by a trick, threw overboard Mr. Cauchon from the Ministerial craft, he was called too much of a working man, and would attend to his department and overlook his subordinates, and this was a fault in the eyes of Mr. McDonald. If Mr. Cauchon had have left his office open to would have been a splendid Minister.

If we are going to increase the dimensions of our Ship of State, let the craft at least have water-tight compartments, and a good crew. At present we have shipped a lot of land-hubbers who are deterred by the too much soil to un-

But the talk is all gaunimon—our Ministry will only agitate the Union of the British North American Provinces to hoodwink and deceive. Let the people of Western Canada look sharp for another election, and elect men who will not sell their principles, and will give an unimpeachable vote against the Seat of Government principles, and will give an unmistakable vote against the Seat of Government going to Quebec.

Our Turn.

In speaking of the Commercial panic in the United States, some of our contemporaries are hopeful that Canada will weather the storm without much trouble. We hope

RECAPITULATION.
Napanee 1st and 2nd Innings,
Belleville 1st Innings, Majority in favor of Belleville,
To the Editor of the Hastings Chronicle

SIR,—I have been a reader of new generally, and the Town ones in particular at least a dozen years, and am sometimes, sometimes pleased, and sometimes surprised, at the manner of their conduct in giving publicity to their thoughts and opinions. When a question in which the community at large is interested is discussed racy and firmness are necessary, and obtain. No great wrong escapes exposure unredressed, where the Press is to its trust. So far, so good. What like myself, who read for information wish, is that the Press,—a powerful engine when properly conducted,—should make the vehicle of purely personal pig lumpy, and ineffectual. I have read the publications and recriminations so long past between the Town papers—a parallel to cannot be found in Canada,—not that rural has gratified me, but for the purpose seeing how far they would be carried, try to ascertain for what cause such a difficult tirade should be indulged in. As a true saying runs, "it is cold steel that —so when an undue amount of asperity is exhibited by a writer or speaker, the conclusion is obvious that there is emotion in his heart than reason in his head. Taking this simple rule as a criterion, and examining carefully from week to week the original articles, editorial and communal of your cotemporary and yourself, for out the assertion that he has always been an aggressor,—that you have stood solely on the defensive,—and that in every case of trouble charges he has brought, and which you have challenged him to prove, he has failed in doing so. I state candidly what is susceptible of proof, from access to the files of the Department, and from a general facility for observation of the proceedings on both sides.

the sections or parties on both sides, it is not any public or private abuse the Indicator's editor and correspondents seek to expose while combating the Chronicle,—none in the matters alluded to,—but simply to testify personal malevolence and jealousy, the fact of their playing upon more words, and indulging in slang, such as "hog," "dog," "vomit," "balderdash," "fellow," "pub-

"ape," &c. &c. &c., instead of proving allegations on any given point by facts and argument, corroborates my assertion, the last charge of the Intelligencer as ample, viz., that the Chronicle's editorial raised articles from the "Encyclopædians," and the London Times. I read articles, as well as the Intelligencer's and General Reader's "Threats," and—General Reader, they know it that in the former case all that was extracted from the work was duly credited—to black and white for this,—and in the case, after charging you with stealing from the London Times on a given as proof of their assertion, they not only do so, but emit such a quantity of ver-low epithets, that I really wonder even a temerity in dealing out such violence to public. These expressions being couched in the proper name of the person who edited Chronicle, the conclusion is that if he is really deserving of them from a public point must be guilty of some gross act, real legal interference, or at least justifying dignation meeting" to abate the business of the immaculate editor of the Intelligencer. His coterie of correspondents want the right to believe their charges (whatever they are). Why don't they first prove them? They could not expect their readers to believe a lie simply because they wanted them to. The public mind is fully as discerning as the sagacious editor or his specialized correspondents—and far more ingenious—and of such efforts as have appeared lately from "General Review" editors, suit any one but their authors. I have yet to learn it.

With regard to the instructions contained in the words "broad sheet," I have only to say that it is beneath an editor or a printer to allude publicly to the person who contributes editorially to a paper. In longer papers, from Belleville, via Montreal, Kingston, Quebec, Toronto, Hamilton, London, etc., where the service of literary gentlemen is required, the various departments on journals like as to be the Intelligencer, it is the matter of style, and not the person who writes, that is prominently before the public. In very many instances the names of the authors of editorial articles are never known. It is not nearly as essential to know who writes this or that, as it is to have what is written, at least as generally to "write" it. When your contemporary understands this, and not that he will have learned one of the first principles of editorial courtesy and propriety.

I am aware that nothing but a coarse and ill-considered reply need be expected to these remarks, which I have felt it right to make for various reasons. I wish I understood the matter perfectly, and I desire to allude to the increasing and unexplained exorbitance of the price of the paper, which is a nuisance to the public, and has led me to use a word on the subject.

Yours

Particular Reader.

OXYGENATED BITTERS

From the Boston Daily Evening Traveller.

To Dr. J. C. Wright. We would call the attention of those who are afflicted with the terrible complaint to a remedy, which from the modest way in which it is advertised, and the small price, affords great relief, and is, in almost every instance, a certain cure. We allude to the Oxygenated Bitters, sold by Messrs. W. Lewis & Co., 128 Washington Street. This is not a remedy for a mere passing complaint, but a permanent cure for the most distressing cases of indigestion, and some of the first and most successful cures have been cured by its use, and whose names are familiar to every Bostonian, and are a sure evidence of its efficacy. For dyspepsia, debility, and weakness, it is a most successful remedy. It may be had at all the apothecaries.

The Banks and the Crisis.

The suspension of specie payments may be said to be a general thing throughout the United States. One bank, the New York Bank, has been closed, and the others are expected to follow. It is difficult to pay in specie, and it is difficult to get specie. The banks are in a state of panic, and the public are in a state of confusion. The banks are in a state of panic, and the public are in a state of confusion. The banks are in a state of panic, and the public are in a state of confusion.

In considering the course taken by the banks, it is not to be concluded that it was not a matter of mere expediency, growing out of the fact that the banks of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and the other important cities had not the specie, but a measure of irretrievable necessity, imposed on them by the suspension of specie payments. It is not to be concluded that it was not a matter of mere expediency, growing out of the fact that the banks of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and the other important cities had not the specie, but a measure of irretrievable necessity, imposed on them by the suspension of specie payments.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor creases and discoloration, characteristic of old paper. The left edge of the page shows the binding structure, including what appears to be a vertical strip of material and some stitching or staples. The overall tone is warm and off-white.
